Nervous Prostration
Complete Recovery by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

LADIES' LATEST STYLE VISITING CARDS AT the INDEX-TRIBUNE OFFICE.

AN INDIAN BOY'S PONY.

An Account of His First Attempt to Ride It at a Buffalo Hunt.

Thus led by those dedicated to religious service, the tribe leaves its village, the people by families dropping into line—men, well mounted, bearing their weapons ready for use; women, in gala dress, riding their decorated ponies, older ones leading the pack horses; little children in twos and threes upon the backs of steady old nags, or snugly stowed away in the swinging pouch between the tent poles, and the dogs trotting complacently everywhere.

Here and there along the line of the cavalcade is a lad being initiated into individual responsibility. He has been upon the hunt before, as one of the family, but this is the first step toward going independently uncared for as child. The father has lassoed a wild horse, saddled and bridled him and now bids his son mount the animal. The boy hangs back, the colt is a fiery creature and already restive under restraint. The father tells his son that the horse shall be his own when he has conquered it, but the lad does not move. The lookers on are smiling, and the cavalcade does not wait. "Get up," says the father.

The boy slowly advances, and the colt quickly recedes, but the boy, grasping his mane, swings himself into the saddle. The father lets go, and so does the colt—rears, jumps, wriggles, humps his back like an infuriated cat, stands on his fore legs and kicks at his own tail, paws the air and stamps the earth, but the boy clings to him until, with a sudden jerk, the saddle girth is broken, and he is landed over the head of the excited creature, which runs for dear life and liberty. Brought back, protesting by twists and shakes of his head, he is again mounted and again frees himself.

After two or three repetitions of this sort of thing the boy becomes angry, and the mother grows anxious. She runs to her son as he is scrambling up from the ground, feels him all over and moves his legs and arms to see if he is hurt. He is impatient at the delay. He is going to master that pony now or die for it. This time he stays on. In vain the animal lashes himself into foam and fury. The boy sticks to him like the shirt of Nessus, and the father at last leads the indivisible pair between the tent poles which trail behind a sophisticated family horse, and there, fenced in, they journey all day, trying to get used to each other. The pony does not see his way out of the poles and is forced to keep up with the procession.—Century.

TEACHERS IN ENGLAND.

A Pathetic Letter From One Which Tells Its Own Story.

An English paper, having offered to throw open its columns to a consideration of the "worst paid class in the community," prints the following:

DEAR ANSWERS—I am a schoolmaster, and it is my pleasing duty to teach Greek, Latin, French, English, mathematics and 50 other things to the "sons of gentlemen." I receive board and lodging and £30 a year from my benevolent employer, who makes a net profit of over £1,500 per annum out of his school.

My poor old dad (a country parson) was always anxious that I should receive "the education of a gentleman," so he pinched and screwed to send me to a good public school and subsequently to Oxford. I may say, without conceit, that I distinguished myself at both places, winning scholarships and other prizes with a facility that seemed to mark me out for the life of an instructor of youth. Behold me, then, at the age of 29, raking in the lordly stipend mentioned above and luxuriating in the "home comforts," which, according to his advertisements, my principal supplies for his boys.

During nine months in the year I may be said to be on duty for the whole 24 hours. When I am not teaching my boys, I am playing football or cricket with them, and I am even obliged to sleep in the same dormitory with 12 hearty youngsters, who snore like steam sirens. The worst feature of the life is the fact that there is no future before me. If I had a capital of £2,000, or even £1,000, I might start a school of my own; but, as it is, I can hope for nothing better. What will become of me in my old age I tremble to think. There are hundreds of expensively educated young fellows in the United Kingdom who can earn no more at schoolmastering than I do. Sincerely yours, M. A. (Oxon).

Unjust Aspersion on the Boy.

"Talk about intellects!" said Webb. "That new office boy of mine has a head that would fill grandfather's hat."

"What's the matter now?" asked Bluffkins cautiously. "You were saying only last night that that boy was so careless you were afraid he might come to business some morning without his breakfast."

"I know it. That's just what I said. But I mean to ask that boy's forgiveness. It was only this morning that I learned how unjust I had been. 'I gave the youngster several letters to mail. He was gone some time, so when he came back I said, 'I'm afraid you didn't post those letters very promptly and that your carelessness has made me miss the mail.'

"'Oh, no, sir,' he replied. 'I'm sure I didn't waste any time. In fact, I took care that the first letter I put in the box was the one marked 'Immediate!'"—Boston Budget.

A Big Brained Major.

An amusing incident occurred while a company of a certain battalion stationed in one of our garrison towns were going through their musketry training. Owing to a strong wind blowing from the right, the bullets kept falling to the left of the target. An old major, who was in charge at the ranges, came over to the color sergeant and inquired the cause of the bad shooting. On being told that there was too much wind blowing from the right, causing the shots to fall wide, he astonished the sergeant by asking, "Wouldn't it be a good idea if the targets were moved more to the left?" The color sergeant barely restrained a smile.—London Tit-Bits.

THE NEW CHILD.

It Is a Dreadful Little Animal, Pert and Precocious.

"A is not an article," remarked a child the other day to her mother, who was helping her with her school lesson. "Fancy your not knowing that it's a distinguishing adjective!" We asked a small schoolgirl the other day if she learned astronomy. "Astronomy! Of course not! That's an infant's subject," she answered, with great contempt. "Have you read Pope's 'Essay on Man?'" we inquired lately of a girl of 13. "Pope! Why, nobody thinks anything of him nowadays," she replied. "Do you know Milton's 'Paradise Lost?'" "Oh, we got beyond that long ago."

The worst of a childish dictum of this sort is that you feel yourself so absolutely quenched. There is no getting any further in the argument, for no pigheadedness equals the pigheadedness of the very young person—in fact, of the new child. And then he—or she—is never amused with the simple games that used to delight us. Modern children are willing to play if only to please their elders, but they are mildly and politely bored. They are bored with most things. They have 20 picture books where we had one—none of your garish, crude illustrations, but æsthetic designs, and yet they don't seem to care about them.

There is a good story of how an old gentleman with much toil and trouble manufactured a large kite for his small grandson. He and another old friend, with the boy, went out to fly the kite. The two old men were deeply engrossed, the grandson got so bored that quietly absented himself, and after time the two old fogies found to disgust that they had been larking t all alone with a kite, much to the sement of the passersby. And another story—of a little girl of 8 who to her mother (an authoress), mumsey, why not call your new 'The Rod of Love?'"—does not quite pleasantly. Ah, There is thing terribly unchildish about the w child!"—New York Times.

THE EGG DANCE.

Beautiful Feat That Is Performed by Hindoo Juggling Girls.

One of the most wonderful of the by feats performed by Hindoo jugs is the egg dance. Usually it is exted by a girl, fantastically dressed. makes use of the willow wheel, nd which at equal distances are ads, and at the end of each thread re is a noose, held open by a bead. his wheel the girl places on her d, while she carries a basket of eggs her arm. When the music strikes up, begins to dance, and the wheel bes to spin around. She then takes an from the basket, places it in one of thread nooses and throws it from with sufficient force to draw the t tight. The spinning of the wheel ps the thread stretched, with the egg the end of it.

She then takes another egg from the ket, places it in another noose and eats this until there is an egg in evnoose. Her fantastic costume, her fect motion and all the eggs swingon the stretched threads at once pret a very pretty sight indeed. It res much art to execute the dance, at one false step the eggs would be hed together, the dance spoiled and dancer thereby disgraced.

After dancing for a time with all the s swinging around her head she takes m out of the noose one by one, all the time keeping the wheel balanced and in motion, and again places them in the basket on her arm.

When the dance is finished, the spectators are allowed to examine the eggs to see that they are real.—Philadelphia Times.

A White Squall.

"A white squall—did I ever see one? I should say I had," said an old sailor in the barge office. "We were between here and the West Indies, and it was as fair a day as you ever put eyes on. I was at the wheel, and we were bowling along under a pretty sailing breeze. There wasn't a cloud to be seen, unless a little white vapor far off could be called a cloud. All of a sudden the captain came up out of his cabin.

"'Get all the light sails off her as quick as you can,' he shouted to the mate. 'Clew up the royals and to'gallant sails and bear a hand lively, boys.'

"'What's the matter with the old man now?" said the sailors as they looked around the horizon and saw nothing but sunshine and the clear sky.

"Nevertheless all hands turned to getting in the light sails. The captain took the wheel and sent me to assist. Of course we all thought it was a piece of foolishness, but we worked with a will because the captain told us to.

"Well, we had no sooner got those sails in than it struck. Right out of the clear sky came an awful gale. It tore our great mainsail and other sails to ribbons quicker than a flash. It came 'butt end to,' as the sailors say.

"How did the captain know it was coming? Why, he was in his cabin and happened to see his glass go down suddenly. That meant something, and he hustled on deck. A good captain watches his barometer as a cat watches a mouse."—Portland Press.

The Fight Which Is to Come.

The fate of the civilized world had always hung upon the strength of the Aryan nations to repel the attempts of Asiatics to force their way into Europe and to flood the western world with oriental ideas and habits, modes of government and forms of religion. The struggles of Greece with Persia and of Rome with Carthage, the struggles of Greeks, Romans and Teutons with the Saracens; the conflicts, extending to our own times, with the Turks, were but so many acts in one long drama, of which the earliest scenes are to be found in the pages of Herodotus, and the latest might be studied in the telegrams of the daily newspaper.—"Life of Freeman, Dean of Westminster."

The Great Church Scandal.

The Rev. C. E. Chase, pastor of the Congregational Church of Sonoma, says a dispatch to the Examiner, is well acquainted with Mrs. M. A. Stockton, who has been accused by Rev. Dr. Brown of attempting to blackmail him.

Mr. Chase says he first became acquainted with Mrs. Stockton at Port Angeles a few years ago, through a letter of introduction from Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper of San Francisco, who recommended her as a good woman for kindergarten work. Shortly after Mrs. Stockton opened the kindergarten, and while conducting it, Mr. Chase says, she was an honest, hardworking and conscientious Christian woman. Mrs. Stockton's husband being a confirmed drunkard, she applied for and secured a divorce from him on the grounds of intemperance. At this time she had three children, and being unable to support them all, Mr. and Mrs. Chase took out adoption papers in the Superior for the youngest child, then one year old, who is now known as Mignon Chase.

Failing in her kindergarten work through the influence of Lloyd Tevis she secured a position in the U. S. Surveyor-General's office in San Francisco.

About two years ago Mrs. Stockton wrote to Mr. Chase asking his advice as to joining the First Congregational Church of San Francisco. He advised her to join Dr. Brown's church, and the lady, on his recommendation, was accepted as a member.

Mr. Chase says that if Mrs. Stockton had been properly directed she would have made a good and conscientious member of the church. Little, Mignon, the child of Mrs. Stockton, who was adopted by the Rev. Mr. Chase, is a handsome, intelligent child eight years old, and is at present attending the public school in this place.

The secret of a speedy cure in sickness lies in selecting the proper remedy and this is difficult to do unless one is sure what the ailment is. But one thing is sure, had the liver been actively at work sickness could not have come. It is then always safe to take Simmons Liver Regulator which keeps the liver well regulated and all poison expelled from the system.

The World's Fair Tests showed no baking powder so pure or so great in leavening power as the Royal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constant failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

COUNTY NEWS.

GLEANED DURING THE PAST WEEK.

Only twenty-two out of sixty-five applicants for teachers' certificates before the County Board were successful.

The Capitol Saloon at Petaluma was entered on Monday evening last by burglars. The safe was cracked and between $125 and $130 was secured by the crooks.

Clarence, the youngest son of J. L. Dinwiddie of Petaluma, one day last week, accidentally shot himself just above the heart with a parlor rifle. It is not thought that the wound is dangerous.

Mrs. W. F. Lewis took a dose of carbolic acid with suicidal intent Sunday night near Sebastopol. Her husband, who was well known in San Francisco, died a few days ago and was buried Sunday near Sebastopol. His death preyed upon her mind, it is thought, and induced the effort to destroy her life. Mrs. Lewis is the mother of four children, who live with her on a ranch.

Dora H. Young of Petaluma, Albert L. Holmes and George C. Lippien are contesting the will of Fredrick E. Lippien, their brother. He left an estate valued at $10,000 to a Miss Grace Hooper, and the contestants claim that she unduly influenced him, and that he was insane. They claim also that because the words "Frederick E. Lippien, 110 Sutter street, room 1," are printed in the corner of the paper the will written upon it is invalid.—Petaluma Courier.

David Fisher has been arrested on the charge of perjury in swearing that Miss Blakely, the young lady married by him the day before Christmas, was eighteen years of age. The arrest was made by Officer Boswell on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Blakely, the bride's father. Fisher was at his farm near Forestville, to which he returned after the wedding ceremony. He was brought to Santa Rosa by the officer, and on giving bonds in the sum of $500 was released to appear before Justice Baldwin for examination next Thursday.—Santa Rosa Republican.

Another prisoner made his escape from a moving train Friday afternoon of last week. One Walsh, who had been sentenced to serve a term in the county jail, was being brought down to Santa Rosa from Healdsburg. The train was about half way to Santa Rosa when Walsh asked permission to go to the closet. A train boy hearing the request went to the car door, and just as he opened it something heavy dropped to the ground. Looking back he saw the prisoner starting across the adjoining field. Constable Ingalls stopped the train and got after the prisoner, who was still in sight, when an exciting chase was commenced. When he saw the train stop it put lite into his actions, and he was doing his level best to hold his advantage and keep out of range of the constable's pistol. At last accounts the man was still at large.

Healdsburg was thrown into great excitement Monday evening by the shooting of J. W. Rose by R. K. Truitt while in the postoffice and the building crowded with people. It is stated that there has existed an old-time enmity between Rose and Truitt and was primarily the cause of the shooting. The immediate cause, as nearly as can be learned, was that Rose accused Truitt of insulting his family. Monday evening about seven o'clock while numbers of people were awaiting the distributing of the mail Rose walked into the postoffice and struck Truitt, who was talking with a friend, in the face and was preparing to follow it up when Truitt pulled a pistol from his pocket. Before he could shoot, however, Rose had clinched with Truitt and thrown him to the floor, and while Rose was bending over him Truitt shot three times, two of the shots taking effect. One entering the shoulder just in front of the left armpit and was taken out at the back, the ball having gone clear through the shoulder and lodged against the scapula. This was the more serious wound of the two. The second shot hit Rose a little to one side of the left nipple; glancing on the rib, the bullet went in the direction of the shoulder and did no particular harm, more than making a painful wound. Both men are well known citizens of Healdsburg and old-time residents of Sonoma county.

The meals to be had at the Sonoma House, now kept by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stein, are the best to be had in any hotel north of San Francisco. *

A LONELY DEATH.

Old John Dunn, the Recluse of the Tules, Dies as He Had Lived.

John Dunn, the recluse of the tules, is dead. On Sunday last his dead body was found lying upon the floor of his cabin. The discovery was made by Andrew Goess.

The recluse had been dead three or four days. Dunn's faithful hunting dog had made his appearance, the day before the remains were found, at the home of P. Hein, who has charge of the drawbridge across Sonoma creek. The animal, in order to reach Hein's, which was several miles distant, had to swim numerous sloughs and creeks, and reached his destination in an exhausted condition. The strange antics of the dog and the fact of his long and tiresome journey over swamps, tules and sloughs convinced Mr. Hein that Dunn was either sick or dead—in short, that the intelligent animal had come to him to seek succor for his master. This incident led to the discovery of Dunn's remains.

The following morning, Mr. Hein, who was unable to leave his post of duty as bridge-tender, informed Mr. Goess of the dog's long journey and of his misgivings and requested him to stop at Dunn's cabin and investigate. This he did with the above result.

Little is known of Dunn's history previous to becoming a recluse in the Sonoma marshes over a quarter of a century ago. When he first made his appearance in that dreary region he had a small sloop which was fitted up with a sleeping and cooking apartment. This he navigated among the intricate and sinuous creeks and sloughs bordering the shores of San Pablo Bay on the one side and the head of tide water on the other. For years he made his living by hunting and fishing, in both of which he was an expert.

Becoming too old and enfeebled to manage the sloop he disposed of the craft and built himself a rough cabin in a lonely and desolate spot among the mud and tules bordering on what is known to interior navigators as Second Napa Creek. This was about ten years ago. A more forlorn, bleak and uninviting site for a habitation could not have been selected if old man Dunn had looked the world over. Far removed from the companionship of his fellow man he settled down to live and die in the lonely and dreary solitude of the salt marsh lands which know not the sounds of the buzzing insect tribes or the sweet and cheerful carol of the feathered songsters, if except the mounful cry of the tule blackbird. Destitute of trees, vines, wild grasses, babbling brooks, the blooming flowers of spring and all that goes to make nature bright and beautiful—this was the spot in the desolate waste of the unreclaimed tule lands that was selected by the recluse in which to spend his declining years. His only companion was his ever-faithful Irish setter dog. Here it was that old man Dunn died as he had lived—in solitude.

Poor old Dunn! No one knows the history of his youth. Mayhap in younger and happier days disappointment in love or some other bereavement caused him to become the recluse that he was, but notwithstanding his lips were sealed as to his youth the latch-key of his cabin hung on the outside and he always had a kindly welcome for the occasional sportsman who happened his way.

For the past year the old man's life has been ebbing with the tide as it flowed past his humble abode on its way to the sea, and finally it went out never to return again, the mournful swish swash of the returning waters being his only requiem.

The death of Dunn was not unexpected, as he passed three-score-years-and-ten four years ago, and it was known to several parties who happened along his way that the old man was failing fast, and when found dead it was no surprise to those who knew him best.

The remains were brought to town on Sunday evening and the following morning an inquest was held by Coroner Young and a jury. After listening to the testimony of Messrs. Hein and Goess, the jury found that deceased was a native of New York, aged 74 years, and that he came to his death from old age and exposure.

The poor old fellow was then laid to rest in the Potter's field of Valley cemetery, the principal mourner being his ever-faithful dog.

HENRY EBERHARDT.

Did He Attempt to Commit Suicide in San Francisco?

Henry Eberhardt, a former resident of Sonoma and well-known to all old-timers, attempted to "shuffle off this mortal coil," by the gas asphyxiation route at the Ahlborn House, San Francisco, on Thursday morning last. He applied for lodging at the house shortly after 4 o'clock in the morning and was assigned to a room on the third floor. At noon one of the servants discovered that Eberhardt's room was filled with gas, and that the occupant could not or would not reply to demands for admittance. The door of the room was forced and Eberhardt was found unconscious on the bed. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital and will recover.

Eberhardt has been engaged in driving the stage between San Jose and Mount Hamilton for a number of years and has been quite successful in business. His Sonoma friends do not think it a case of suicide. They say that Henry, who is "one of the boys," evidently had a "jag" on, and failed to heed the warning of "don't blow out the gas," which hangs over the gas fixtures of every hotel and lodging house in San Francisco. You see, Henry was from the country and was no doubt somewhat "boozy."

The H. C. Manuel Case.

About a year ago Mr. H. C. Manuel of this place was arrested by Constable Scott of Riverside, charged with defrauding a hotel keeper in that place. The arrest was made in Sonoma and H. H. Granice and J. G. Marcy promptly went bail for Mr. Manuel, and he was released from custody. Ever since that time, nearly a year ago, nothing had been done by the authorities of Riverside to bring the case to trial until a few weeks ago, when the case was set in the Justices' Court of Riverside for January 10th.

Although Mr. Manuel had met with business reverses the past two years and had his home sold at Sheriff's sale and had lost every cent he had in the world, his Sonoma friends were still loyal to him. They had not forgotten that in the days of prosperity he spent thousands of dollars in their midst in employing help and in maintaining his family, and they are going to see him through on a charge which they think ought never to have been registered against an honest but unfortunate business man.

Mr. Manuel starts for Riverside to day accompanied by one of his bondsmen, who will see him through, and he will come back with him, too. The bondsman, Mr. Marcy, takes with him the sworn statement of many prominent citizens of Sonoma as to Mr. Manuel's character, which we are sure will not be smirched by the silly charge brought against him by one of his creditors in Riverside. Manuel has been unfortunate in his business ventures, it is true, and is indebted to many people in Sonoma, including his bondsmen, besides the man in Riverside, but as to being a hotel dead beat. Bah! The accused man has committed no public offense, as the day has passed when a man can be imprisoned for debt in this free country. It won't take a Venzuelan commission to decide this question.

The Nordin Suit.

While Dr. and Mrs. Nordin are disputing in the courts over possession of the Agua Caliente Springs debts are piling up against the property for the receiver's salary, hired help, etc. Mechanics' liens are also being filed. Last week two more were filed, one by Jules G. Marcy for $1121.95 and the other by E. Johannsen for $154.25. It is only a question of time when the parties to the suit will be bankrupt if they continue their foolish litigation. The amount of cash spent by Dr. and Mrs. Nordin in purchasing and improving the property was between $25,000 and $30,000, which represented their entire capital.

Painful Accident.

On New Years' day Miss Sadie McHarvey, while taking a walk in the hills north of town, slipped and dislocated her left knee cap. She was accompanied by two lady friends, one of whom came to town for assistance. She was taken home in a buggy and Dr. Walliser was sent for and set the dislocated limb. At latest accounts Miss McHarvey's injury although painful is not considered serious.

Vandalism.

On New Years' eve the handsome mortar and pestal sign in front of Wegner's drug store was riddled with bullets and almost ruined by some evil disposed persons. The sign cost Mr. Wegner $21.

It is capable of flashing a ray of light equivalent to the power of 250,000,000 candles, and the distance from which it can be seen on clear nights is practically limited only to the curvature of the earth.

To prevent new paint brushes from shedding bristles turn handle down, open and spread the bristles, pour in a tablespoonful or less of good varnish and keep the brush in the same position until it dries.

The social event in Sonoma for 1896 will be the grand invitation leap year ball which will take place on the evening of January 24th. The club of young ladies having the affair in charge will make this event one long to be remembered.

The Firemens' Masquerade.

The masquerade ball given in this place on New Years' eve by the Volunteer Firemen was well attended and was a financial and social success. About fifty maskers participated in the grand march. A large number of spectators were also present. A fine supper was spread by mine host Enke of the Union Hotel, to which all did ample justice. Dancing was kept up until half-past three.

Bitten by a Hog.

Henry Hartin, proprietor of the Central Market, while engaged in killing a hog, one day this week, was bitten on the little finger of his left hand by the vicious porker. Dr. Walliser dressed the wound, which is not considered dangerous, as remedies were immediately applied to prevent blood poisoning.

Items from Glen Ellen.

Atkins is still playing his jokes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison of the Hotel Mervyn gave a pleasant New Years' party at their hospitable and well-known house. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening, the floor being under the management of Mr. Turley till 12 o'clock at which time everybody was wished a happy New Year, and to follow the word with the deed Miss L. Beatty was chosen to succeed Mr. Turely on the floor, and from that time on the party was conducted as a leap year party which highly pleased all present and gave the ladies the much coveted chance to choose their own partners. The manner in which Miss Beatty managed the affair would have done credit to a dancing master.

SON MA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

SONOMA SATURDAY, JA .

He "Tells His Tale."

Everybody remembers the lines in Milton's "Allegro:"

And every shepherd tells his tale
Under the hawthorn in the dale.

What kind of tale do shepherds tell beneath the shade in summer dell? Of love, be sure, the shepherd sings, and lovely ways and lovely things; of maiden coy and wooer shy, of whispered word and speaking eye, of songs and games at Christmastide, when mummers mock and hobbies ride; of maypole mirth and Whitsun ale, of dark December's ghostly tale, and kisses snatched, love's daring theft—the more you take the more are left. Such things the poet saw and heard; such songs, such simple tale, such word; what time the hot sun overhead made welcome all the hawthorn shade, and while the swain in sunny June beguiled the summer afternoon.

I believe the above represents accurately what we understand by those two lines. A friend, however, whom I call the Destroyer, because he takes a fiendish pleasure in shattering these pretty looking visions of fantasy, tells me that Milton meant nothing of the kind. He simply alluded to a custom common in some parts of the country of driving the flock through a gap in the hedge on the other side of which the shepherd counts his sheep—i. e., "tells his tale." I hope the Destroyer is not right, but there is his theory.—Walter Besant.

Tennyson Gets Snubbed.

He (Tennyson) desired to be introduced to her, or perhaps—for his ways were somewhat regal—desired that she might be presented to him. In whichever way it was the ceremony was transacted, and Tennyson's second remark was this question, "Oh, Lady ——, do I know Lord ——?" The person about whom he thus inquired was a peer, who, though young, had won much distinction in public life and was widely known in private. His wife, as it happened, was devoted to him, and jealous of any word which sounded like disparagement of his position or indifference to his renown.

She looked Tennyson in the face and answered, with perfect composure of manner: "I am sure, Lord Tennyson, I can't say. I never heard him mention your name in my life." For a moment the poet was staggered by this straight hit from the shoulder, but he had the good sense and good temper to take it well.—Smalley's "Studies of Men."

Humors of Congress.

During an exciting debate in the house of representatives the members sometimes not only indulge in mixed metaphors but rival Sir Boyle Roche, the member of the Irish parliament most famous for his "bulls." The National Tribune prints these specimens:

A member in referring to one of his colleagues said:

"The gentleman, like a mousing owl, is always putting in his oar where it is not wanted."

In another speech occurred this expression:

"The iron heel of stern necessity darkens every hearthstone."

And another member in a very forcible and dramatic manner asked the house this startling question:

"Would you stamp out the last flickering embers of a life that is fast ebbing away?"

Electric Lights For Tigers.

A sportsman of Calcutta has employed the electric light with success in hunting tigers by night among the jungles of the Sunderbunds. It is usual to set a bait for the tiger—for instance, the body of a cow or other animal—and watch for him from a raised platform or manchan close by. Instead of the blue light hitherto burned to illuminate the tiger in order to aim well, the gentleman in question has rigged up a 16 candle power electric lamp, fed by a portable battery of 30 capo farad cells, carried in his belt. The lamp, fitted with a reflector, is suspended from a tree over the bait. A switch beside the hunter enables him to start the light when the tiger is engaged in devouring his prey.—London Globe.

An Old Soldier's Recommendation.

In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhoea. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. BENDING, Halsey, Oregon. For sale by all dealers.

Have to get up about three times during night, and am very much better in every respect. Will continue to take your Vegetable Sarsaparilla, for believe it will entirely cure me.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

Baffled.

The word baffled now has a meaning entirely different from that applied to it 300 years ago. It is now understood to mean thwarted, foiled or disappointed, but then it was applied to the process of degradation by which a knight was disgraced. A baffled knight was one who had been pronounced guilty of conduct unbecoming one of his order and had accordingly been shorn of his plumes, his sword was broken before his eyes, his knightly robe torn away, his spurs cut off with a cleaver, and after being publicly chastised he was declared to be baffled. The word is used in this sense by Shakespeare and other writers of that time.

Sacrifice of Sight.

Said a well known optician: "You have no idea how many people come in here daily who want cheap glasses. Affection of the eyes, which require the nicest and most accurate adjustment to correct, and which cannot be done without good glasses, are deemed of less moment than other so called human necessities." While he was speaking a man entered who purchased a pair of spectacles for 25 cents. "There is an example," continued the optician. "That man's sight will probably become worse. But there's a large demand for cheap glasses, and we are forced to supply that demand."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Sir John Macdonald and the Kilts.

Sir John Macdonald was at a reception in the west, and a bishop from Belgium was present. As the party were being escorted by a body of men in highland costume the foreign bishop, seeing the bare legs and kilts, asked why these men were without trousers. "It's just a local custom," gravely replied Sir John. "In some places people take off their hats as a mark of honor to ditinguished guests. Here they take off their trousers."—Canadian Gazette.
